

FACULTY POSITION
TEACHING SCHOLAR TRACK – ASSISTANT PROFESSOR
ARTHUR LABATT FAMILY SCHOOL OF NURSING

The Faculty of Health Sciences at Western University, Arthur Labatt Family School of Nursing invites applications for a probationary Teaching Scholar appointment, effective July 1, 2024 or as negotiated. This probationary appointment will be made at the rank of Assistant Professor and will lead to consideration of continuing status and promotion to Associate Professor, Teaching Scholar at the end of the probationary period (maximum 6 years). The workload for the Teaching Scholar is 60% teaching, 20% educational scholarship, and 20% service. Compensation will be commensurate with educational qualifications and experience.

The successful candidate will hold a PhD in Nursing or a related field. Additional postgraduate training in the field of Education will be considered an asset. Candidates are expected to have demonstrated excellence and varied experiences in education, as well as enthusiasm for quality and innovative educational practices. Further, candidates will have demonstrated a track record of educational scholarship that includes (for example) curriculum development and evaluation; educational leadership; mentoring; presentations and scholarship on teaching or pedagogy; or research into the efficacy of different pedagogical approaches. Candidates may demonstrate evidence of their scholarship activities through innovation in methods that enhance student learning; creation and development of models of effective teaching; advances in the delivery of education in a discipline or profession; and engagement in the scholarly conversation via professional activity and publications. Past experience or ability to deliver undergraduate and/or graduate content in one or more of the following domains would be beneficial: Indigenous health, simulation, or digital health. The successful candidate will have a demonstrated capacity to contribute substantively to an inclusive and diverse academic community.
